Gemma Arterton

The GRAVESEND GIRL who became a HOLLYWOOD REVOLUTIONARY

1 Cirque du ROUNDHOUSE
Practise your 'ooohs' and 'ahhhs' for Compagnie XY's It's Not Yet Midnight... circus production. The gravity-defying contortions are guaranteed to make you want to run away and join the circus. Tickets from £19.50. 10-23 April (roundhouse.org.uk)

3 High GI
Pop artist Ben Turnbull weaves Americana-inspired stories into his multimedia collages. In No Guts No Glory at the Saatchi Gallery, he tells the tale of 20th-century GIs from departure to homecoming. Free. 11 April to 8 May (saatchigallery.com)

CAPITAL GAINS What to do in London

BY FRANKIE McCOY

4 PRINTS CHARMING
Learn fashion from the pros, from Caitlin Price (pictured) to Susie Bubble, in a series of workshops at Hackney Walk's fashion industry collective Stitch Academy. Ashley Williams' print design class is this Saturday. Until 29 April (hackneywalk.com)

6 IT'S ALL ACADEMIC
Who doesn't love a bit of bourgeois comedy? And who better to play the middle-class solipsists of Christopher Hampton's The Philanthropist than the hilarious Simon Bird, Matt Berry and Lily Cole? Tickets from £19.50. Until 22 July (trafalgar-studios.co.uk)

2 Espresso YOURSELF
Granted, a day at London Coffee Festival means no sleep for a week — but true bean buffs will make that sacrifice for food and coffee pairings, flavour challenges and latte art classes. Tickets from £16.50. 7-9 April (londoncoffeefestival.com)

5 MIGHTY MEATY
Indian street-food legend Rola Wala teams up with Yard Sale Pizza for the Nagaland Warrior: a vindaloo lamb and scorpion chilli behemoth available for one week only. Until 17 April (yardsalepizza.com)

7 Sherlock AHMED
The brilliant The Night Of star Riz Ahmed moves from murderous New York to, er, murderous London in new film City of Tiny Lights, alongside Billie Piper. The Golden Globe nominee plays a private detective tasked with solving the death of a call-girl. Out 7 April

LAST CHANCE: missed Maggi Hambling's exhibition at the British Museum? Catch the last days of her display at the Marlborough Gallery before it closes on 13 April (marlboroughlondon.com)

LOOK AHEAD: food bible Lucky Peach is going into recipe books, with 'All About Eggs' out this week. At Notting Hill's Eggbreak try signature dishes from the book, like corned beef hash (eggbreak.com)
